Introduction

Non-Governmental Organizations and the United Nations Department of Public Information: Some Questions and Answers

The opening words of the United Nations Charter are: "We, the Peoples of the United Nations." This is the clearest possible statement that the United Nations does not belong to States alone. It is part of the common heritage of all of humankind. It belongs to everyone. For each and every one of us, it is a unique institution, a mechanism which links us all in our efforts to build a better world. It is an expression of human faith and confidence in the future.

Secretary-General Kofi Annan
Messina, Italy, April 1997

What is a non-governmental organization?

A non-governmental organization (NGO) is any non-profit, voluntary citizens' group which is organized on a local, national or international level. Task-oriented and driven by people with a common interest, NGOs can perform a variety of services and humanitarian functions, bring citizens' concerns to Governments, monitor policies and encourage political participation at the community level. Those which share the principles of the United Nations are able to work directly or indirectly with the Organization. They provide analysis and expertise, serve as early warning mechanisms and help monitor and implement international agreements. Some are organized around specific issues, such as human rights, the environment or health. Their relationship with offices and agencies of the United Nations System differs depending on their goals, their venue and their mandate.

Close to 1,600 NGOs with strong information programmes on issues of concern to the United Nations are associated with the Department of Public Information (DPI), providing the United Nations with valuable links to people around the world. DPI helps those NGOs gain access to and disseminate information about the range of issues in which the United Nations is involved, to enable the public to understand better the aims and objectives of the Organization.

How do NGOs and DPI cooperate?

The Department of Public Information and NGOs cooperate regularly. NGOs associated with DPI disseminate information about the UN to their membership, thereby building knowledge of and support for the Organization at the grassroots level. This dissemination includes:

- Publicizing UN activities around the world on such issues as peace and security, economic and social development, human rights, humanitarian affairs and international law;
- Promoting UN observances and international years established by the General Assembly to focus world attention on important issues facing humanity.

When did the DPI relationship with NGOs begin?

The importance of working with and through NGOs as an integral part of United Nations information activities was recognized when the Department of Public Information was first established in 1946. The General Assembly, in its resolution 13 (I), instructed DPI and its branch offices to:

"...actively assist and encourage national information services, educational institutions and other governmental and non-governmental organizations of all kinds interested in spreading information about the United Nations. For this and other purposes, it should operate a fully equipped reference service, brief or supply lecturers, and make available its publications, documentary films, film strips, posters and other exhibits for use by these agencies and organizations."

In 1968, the Economic and Social Council, by Resolution 1297 (XLIV) of 27 May, called on DPI to associate NGOs, bearing in mind the letter and spirit of its Resolution 1296 (XLIV) of 23 May 1968, which stated that an NGO "...shall undertake to support the work of the United Nations and to promote knowledge of its principles and activities, in accordance with its own aims and purposes and the nature and scope of its competence and activities".

What are the criteria for NGOs to become associated with DPI?

Organizations eligible for association with DPI are those which:

- Share the ideals of the UN Charter;
- Operate solely on a not-for-profit basis;
- Have a demonstrated interest in United Nations issues and proven ability to reach large or specialized audiences, such as educators, media representatives, policy makers and the business community;
- Have the commitment and means to conduct effective information programmes about UN activities by publishing newsletters, bulletins, and pamphlets; organizing conferences, seminars and round tables; and enlisting the cooperation of the media.

What is the procedure for NGOs to become associated with DPI?

An NGO that meets the established criteria should send an official letter from its headquarters to the Chief of the NGO Section, Department of Public Information, expressing interest in association with DPI. The letter should state the reasons why the organization seeks such association and should briefly describe its information programmes. This letter should be accompanied by at least six samples of recent information materials produced by the applying organization. Letters of reference from UN Departments, UN Programmes and Specialized Agencies, and/or UN Information Centres and Services (UNICs and UNISs) will greatly enhance consideration of the application.

Correspondence should be sent to:

Chief, NGO Section
Department of Public Information
Room S-1070L
United Nations, New York, N.Y. 10017
Tel: (212) 963-6842
Fax: (212) 963-6914
E-mail: dpingo@un.org

Once the application process is completed, the DPI Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations will review applications at its annual sessions. Applicants are then notified of the results of the Committee's deliberations, and associated NGOs are invited to designate their main and alternate representatives to the Department of Public Information.

Please note: Association of NGOs with DPI does not constitute their incorporation into the United Nations system, nor does it entitle associated organizations or their staff to any kind of privileges, immunities or special status.

What does consultative status with the Economic and Social Council entail?

Another way to work directly with the United Nations is through the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC). Many NGOs active in the field of economic and social development have qualified for consultative status with the Economic and Social Council.

Article 71 of the Charter provides that "...the Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultations with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence". Such arrangements are governed by ECOSOC resolution 1296 (XLIV) of 23 May 1968, which makes provision for NGOs to be placed in consultative status with ECOSOC, as well as for them to hold consultations with its secretariat.

In 1996, ECOSOC revised its arrangements for consultation with NGOs. It standardized arrangements for accrediting NGOs for UN conferences, streamlined the process of applying for ECOSOC consultative status, and decided that national NGOs would be eligible to apply. "General status", according to its Resolution 1996/31, is granted to large, international NGOs that work on almost all the issues on ECOSOC's agenda; "special consultative status" is granted to NGOs that have competence in a few of ECOSOC's issue areas; while "roster status" is granted to NGOs which ECOSOC considers can make occasional useful contributions to its work.

Another outcome of the review was ECOSOC Decision 1996/297, which recommended that the General Assembly examine the question of the participation of NGOs in all areas of work of the UN, in light of the experience gained through the consultative arrangement between NGOs and ECOSOC. Subsequently, the Secretary-General has been reporting to the General Assembly on arrangements and practices for the interaction of NGOs in all activities of the UN system (A/53/170 of 10 July 1998).

ECOSOC decides on consultative status for NGOs based upon the recommendation of its inter-governmental Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations. This Committee is composed of 19 Member States and meets yearly. For further information contact:

CONGO, the Conference of Non-Governmental Organizations in Consultative Relationship with the United Nations, serves as a representative voice of NGOs in consultative status with ECOSOC. CONGO ensures that these NGOs enjoy the fullest opportunities and appropriate facilities for performing their consultative functions, provides a forum on the consultative process, and convenes meetings of member organizations to exchange views on matters of common interest.

NGOs that have consultative status with ECOSOC and possess strong public information programmes are granted association with DPI upon written request to the DPI/NGO Section.

What is the NGO/DPI Executive Committee?

The 18-member NGO/DPI Executive Committee is elected by the DPI/NGO community to act in an advisory and liaison capacity to channel information and to represent the interests of NGOs associated with DPI. This Committee is made up of NGOs from different parts of the world whose representatives in New York are elected for a period of two years. The Executive Committee collaborates with the DPI/NGO Section on events, programmes and initiatives of mutual interest, including organization of the Annual DPI/NGO Conference.

The NGO/DPI Executive Committee is not part of the Department of Public Information. NGOs' association with DPI is independent of their relationship with the Executive Committee. DPI-associated NGOs are encouraged to maintain regular contact with the DPI/NGO Section.

How does DPI assist NGOs?

The DPI/NGO Section at United Nations Headquarters provides a number of services to its associated organizations. For example, the Section:

- Organizes and coordinates, in collaboration with the DPI/NGO Executive Committee, the Annual DPI Conference for Non-Governmental Organizations. This international forum brings together senior UN System officials, prominent international NGOs, academicians, public opinion makers and international media to discuss issues of global concern;

- Organizes weekly briefings on Thursday mornings for the NGO community at the UN on a range of global issues. The speakers for these briefings are senior United Nations System officials, Member State delegates and NGOs with expertise on the particular issue addressed at the briefing;

- Provides grounds passes which grant a main and an alternate NGO representative access to all "open" meetings of UN bodies; to DPI photo, film and audio libraries; to the Dag Hammarskjold Library; and, as observers, to the meetings of some 22 NGO committees organized by the Conference of NGOs in Consultative Status with ECOSOC (CONGO);

- Coordinates joint DPI/NGO information programmes;

- Conducts a yearly orientation course for newly accredited NGO representatives;
- Publishes the DPI/NGO Annual Directory, which lists all associated NGOs alphabetically, by region and by subject of specialization;

- Maintains the NGO Resource Centre, which offers:
  - -- access to current UN documents and press releases;
  - -- mailings of UN information materials to all associated NGOs;
  - -- a video lending library with an extensive collection of UN films;
  - -- a continuously updated selection of United Nations System publicatons;
  - -- computers with Internet access for on-site research.

An excellent source of information on DPI/NGO activities is the United Nations web site at http://www.un.org/MoreInfo/ngolink/welcome.htm

In addition to collaboration with DPI at Headquarters, the NGO community is encouraged to maintain regular and close contact with the scores of United Nations Information Centres (UNICs) and United Nations Information Services (UNISs) worldwide to access United Nations information and organize joint projects.

What are the responsibilities of NGOs associated with DPI?

Beginning with the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945, NGOs have made valuable contributions to the international community by drawing attention to issues, suggesting ideas and programmes, disseminating information and mobilizing public opinion in support of the UN system. Association with DPI constitutes a commitment to that effect. Associated NGOs are expected to devote a portion of their information programmes to promoting knowledge of the United Nations' principles and activities. In addition, they are expected to keep the DPI/NGO Section abreast of their activities by regularly providing samples of their information materials relating to the work of the UN. These are also made available at the DPI/NGO Resource Centre. ♦
